This List Applies to the Trade Only
DAHLIA CLUMPS

The illustration shown on the first page is born of necessity, and while almost self-explanatory, a few words will not be out of place.

At a glance the illustration will show how deceptive the word "field clump" or "whole roots" may be. Some growers propagate from cuttings, some from tubers. Each produce what is known commercially as "clumps." It is therefore of the greatest importance to the purchaser which kind of a clump the advertisement or quotation refers to, Figure 2, or Figure 3. The figures presented represent fairly the representative sizes of the commercial Dahlia tubers, as grown in this country.

My system of growing is from tubers. These produce stock as shown in Figure 3. These are divided for planting and sale purposes, as shown in Figure 1. In dividing, each piece passes a critical scrutiny and all mangled and worthless tubers are removed so that only stock of known quality is sent out. By this method I can save my customers twenty to fifty per cent in express charges, without damage to quality. Prices quoted in this list are for strong divisions with from one to three good eyes. In weight approximately twenty-five pounds to the hundred.

A NEW DEPARTURE

BOX COLLECTIONS—For several years past I have put up for dealers sets of thirteen assorted varieties, unlabeled, embracing a wide range of colors—red, white, pink, yellow, variegated, etc.—no two alike, and all double. These collections are all put up in a neat telescope box and are so packed as to keep without loss through the sale season. They are very handy for store trade. A great advantage is that every sale is over a dollar sale, where the customer otherwise would probably be satisfied with the purchase of a few tubers only. There is also a great saving of time in the transaction. This is not inferior stock but just the same as sells for 20 cents each when labeled; only I use stock that I am fully satisfied on. These boxes retail at from $1.25 to $1.50 each, and cost the dealer 85 cents, or 75 cents in lots of ten.

NOVELTIES AND NEWER DAHLIAS

Special attention is called to this list. They can not fail to please, both in points of beauty and usefulness as a cut flower, and the prices will be found quite reasonable. The following is only a partial list. See retail catalog for further description.

Prices except as noted, 15c each, $1.50 per dozen, $12.00 per hundred

If wanted by mail, add according to Parcel Post zone rates per pound. Dahlias weigh about 2½ lbs. to dozen tubers. No orders will be sent by Post unless the postage is advanced in full, neither will long lists of one or two each be furnished at less than the single piece rate.
